

COMMENCEMENT 2013

DRAWN BY PETER ARKLE
REPORTED BY DAM STAFF

You are, today, betwixt and between. You are in a strange dimension of time and space.

CONGRATULATIONS!!

How late did the party go?

I think he might be sleeping.

I woke up for the main speaker.

Where are the twins? Where's Mom?

He was everyone's favorite.

Where's Jojo?

Hey Mom, where's the car?

Where's the cowbell?

We had sniffer dogs go through twice. It's a different world after Boston.

I don't see him... I hope he's here.

Stay here, Mom!

Well done.

BEEP! BEEP!

Get a picture, get a picture!

I'm going to miss you.

I tried to take classes in economics, science and Shakespeare...

DARTMOUTH on three! Ready?

Are we allowed to go to the bathroom?

There he is! Woo-hoo, well done! OK, let's go.

Do we ever get to sit down?

Where is the nearest bathroom?

Humane letters? What does that mean? Like, as opposed to inhumane letters? As opposed to alien letters?

One!

Two!

Three!

DARTMOUTH!

Who's great idea was it to bring those barking dogs?

I know more Dartmouth history than my son who is graduating.

I need a hug.

CLICK!

CLICK!

I duped 'em for four years.

I thought you were going to punch the dean.

Is that the Stanley Cup?

SO APPROPRIATE

Do you copy?

Nice walking stick.

Our scholarship student and her twin are graduating today. It's a doubleheader.

Everyone is shaking hands with Carol Folt. I kind of want to hug her. Do you think I can hug her?

Yeah, if there's one really important thing that I've learned at Dartmouth... it's to never impulse shop.

What are those sticks for?

I wish you were popular, then you'd have one of those nifty canes.

I should have made my own cane just to mess with everybody.

I'm looking for my family, but I think it's a lost cause.

Wow, she had to shake hands 1,000 times.

That was lovely. Now we just have to find the graduate.

